

WORKS OF CHARITY

SPIRITUAL ACCOMPANIMENT

She saw a twofold opportunity for good works by animating the Christian ladies of her time in their spiritual growth and in ensuring the resulting efficacy of their social activity. During these retreats they came to know the mysteries of Christ, his Gospel and the exercise of prayer. The transformation of these ladies into authentic disciples of Jesus favoured the organization of a committed group that would focus on the real needs of individuals and society. These were quite effective spiritual-promotional alliances. Today, this service of the Institute has embraced many categories of people who are offered the possibility of times for scriptural reflection and prayer, spiritual exercises and days of recollection. The encounter with the Lord in the intimacy of prayer and recollection nurtures the experience of his love and strengthens the faithful in their commitment. to life.
